MarineGuard GPS Tracking Systems: Protect Your Boat While Keeping Money in Your Pocket

MarineGuard Network's GPS tracking systems provide ideal security detection for locating boat's worldwide. Tying in with MarineGuard's comprehensive boat alarms, MarineGuard GPS tracking systems allow boat owners to be notified quickly should their alarm fire or if their boat is moved while the security system is activated. MarineGuard's GPS tracking capabilities enable it to provide latitude/longitude, speed and directional information. The security signal forwards to a cell phone, Blackberry, pager or computer email. For a higher level of security coverage, the signal can be sent to our professional central station. MarineGuard offers two versions of its tracking system: a cellular version for boats located and used in areas with cell phone coverage; and a satellite version for boats located in more remote areas or that travel more than 6 miles offshore.

MarineGuard's satellite reporting system not only works with MarineGuard boat alarms, but it can be tied in to a pre-existing boat alarm as well. The system features four I/Os that provide valuable information to the police and fire departments when responding to the alarm.

Owners with MarineGuard's satellite reporting benefit from online access to their monitoring account. This allows them to check the status of their alarm system.

MarineGuard's GPS tracking systems are affordably priced. Plus, with boat vandalism and theft on the rise, many insurance companies are offering up to a 20 % discount on boats with a security/tracking system onboard. Some companies are even making tracking systems mandatory in order to obtain insurance.
